DETAILED ACTION

This is the Final Office Action for application number 10/626,110 Steadying Camera Support Platform, filed on 7/23/04. Claims 1-21 are pending. Claims 9-21 are withdrawn. This Final Office Action is in response to applicant's reply dated []. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1-4, 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over United States Patent No. 6119995 to Reese et al. and in view of United States Patent No. 6729778 to Wu et al.

The patent to Reese et al. discloses a camera steady device (10) having a support platform (20) and a support shaft (16a, 18) connected to the bottom surface of the platform, having a first upper portion (16), and a separate second lower portion (18), the first and second shafts being positionable within 60 degrees relative to each other and a locking mechanism (24) to lock them in place, a sphere (30) affixed to the upper portion of the support shaft (16a, 18) a socket with a handle (32a, 32b, 16) which has a straight portion and an fifteen degree angled portion (59), the socket which is permitted to freely pivot about the sphere, a range of plus or minus 60 degrees about a roll and pitch axis and plus or minus 360 degrees about a yaw axis by being, the socket which has a first upper plate (32b) with a first downwardly directed truncated spherical recess and a second lower plate (32a) with a second upwardly directed truncated spherical recess, the recesses which pivotally captures the sphere (30).

Reese does teach a counterbalanced socket plate member connected to a bottom portion of the support shaft and a means attachable to socket plate to by which the support platform is suspended or a and means (48) for attaching a video camera.

Wu et al. shows a camera steady device for a video camera (60) and a means for attaching (341) the camera, which has a sphere attached to a support shaft (20) which has a counterbalancing socket plate member (12) connected to a bottom portion of the support shaft (20) and a means (13) attachable to socket plate to by which the support platform is suspended, used to firmly hold the video camera to the device and to suspend the device from a support surface. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made from the teachings of Wu et al. to have added these things to the device of Reese et al. in order to firmly attach the camera to the device and to suspend the device from a support surface.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over United States Patent No. 6513774 6119995 to Reese et al. and in view of United States Patent No. 6729778 to Wu et al. as applied to claims 1 and 4 above, and in view of United States Patent No. 4953852 to Donahue.

Art Unit: 3632

Reese et al. and Wu et al. disclose applicant's basic inventive concept, all the elements which are shown above with the exception that it does not show that the sphere is made of Teflon.

Donahue shows a joint having a sphere (62) that is made of Teflon, used for its low frictional properties (See Col. 6, lines 20-24 for material selection). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made from the teachings of Donahue to have made the sphere of Teflon in order to have a low friction joint.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
